Mars Mission Patch

Vallentina Tereshkova (the first woman in space) famously wore the first ever mission patch on her first mission into space.

Since then it has been a tradition that space missions have a patch. Patches are like a logo, and often include pictures related to the mission. They are often designed by the astronauts and a graphic designer.

Our next few activities are going to focus on a mission to Mars. We would like you to design a patch which you think reflects what a mission to mars maybe like.

Remember to share them with us!
